

A pod making a difference

A new type of pod has been launched into the education sector in Nottingham.

PKL, supplier of temporary kitchens and catering equipment, has launched its KitchenPod successfully into the midlands city.

With budgets tighter than ever, and the possibility of the construction of a permanent new kitchen out of the question, Nottingham City Council needed a cost effective kitchen solution for Whitemoor School.

Installed in the summer holidays, the KitchenPod was ready for use by the first day of term. Julie O'Leary, headteacher of Whitemoor, comments: "As a school we are delighted with our KitchenPod! The improved quality of the dinners now served and consumed on site has transformed our lunch hour. We were impressed that such a huge installation was carried out with such expertise and professionalism."
